About us

When I finished my teaching career in Sao Paulo, Brazil, I wanted to remain in International Education but wanted to be able to base myself in the South West of England so that I could be closer to my friends and family. I have a young family and it was important to my wife and I that our two sons grew up surrounded by a strong family network. Being based in the UK is one of Keyhole International's Unique Selling Points. The landscape of education experiences being offered in the UK is constantly changing and Keyhole International prides itself on building relationships with the providers which are consistently offering the highest level of experiences within the market. There is a huge range of opportunities in the UK for international students to come and study here. I know though, that with this added level of choice, comes a certain level of indecision and confusion for those that are trying to make this important decision. One of Keyhole International's main goals is to remove this indecision and confusion by matching the students personality and their academic needs with the most appropriate education experience that is available. This process will undoubtedly help you to choose the best experience, so that you can concentrate on learning, forming friendships with people from all over the world and creating memories that will last a lifetime.
